FUMIGATE SCHOOLS FOR SCARLET FEVER

In view of the prevalence of scarlet fever in this city and especially the number of cases which have developed in the Jefferson and Adams schools, the two schools will be fumigated from top to bottom this afternoon and evening.

"There is no cause for alarm on the part of the citizens," said Health Officer Buckmaster last evening. "There are at this time but twelve cases in the city, whereas last year there were fifty cases, which caused much trouble to do these twelve. I believe there is no danger of an epidemic, but of course will take every possible step to retard the spread of the disease. In Chicago there are over 1,000 cases; in Milwaukee over 2,000 and in every town and village throughout all this section there are cases prevailing. It is only reasonable to expect that we must have our share. I have already fumigated each school room where there is a case of scarlet fever, and with the fumigation of the entire buildings at the Jefferson and Adams schools, much of the danger will be allayed.

It is very belief that the schools are not as dangerous as are some of the other places of assemblage. In many of the cases it is impossible to trace the source to a school, for the children have been out of school for some time. Reasonable care on the part of parents in keeping their children out of stuffy, crowded places and away from association with many strange children is the best preventive measure.

DISCUSS A UNION OF TWILIGHT AND COMMERCIAL CLUBS

Question is Brought Up at First Meeting of New Directors—Committee Chairman Announced.

The first meeting of the new directors and officers of the Commercial club was held yesterday with President George Parker in the chair. Those present were: J. A. Woodstock, J. L. Clemons, J. J. Wortendyke and H. M. Craig representing the Twilight Club at the suggestion made by past president, J. A. Woodstock, in a resolution to the Twilight Club suggesting in a letter that all activities of the city be covered by one large chamber of commerce and that the Twilight Club or other strong institutions without losing their identity or their activities, become a part of that institution.

Considerable discussion took place on the advisability of such a broadening condition and the opinion of Judge Fildes was that to interfere with the present status of the Twilight Club would be detrimental to both that institution and the Commercial Club. He gave a brief history of the Twilight Club, and said that he believed it had helped to broaden the Commercial Club's work. Mr. Clemons suggested that it was not the idea that any present institution lose its identity but simply to broaden the scope of Janesville's activities and have all of these institutions work through some central point for a bigger benefit to the entire community. Mr. Clemons spoke briefly of the subject as did also Mr. Wortendyke. President Parker thought it well to appoint a committee of three from the Commercial Club to confer with a like committee from the Twilight Club and that it would be the object to give more consideration for a later meeting.

The following chairmen of standing committees were announced by the president:

Community Co-operation; R. E. Wisner.
Industrial; M. O. Mount.
Retail; Joseph M. Monors.
Legislative; W. H. Dougherty.
Marketing; Frank W. Douglas.
Publicity; H. M. Bliss.
Insurance; Robert Bostwick.
Membership; George E. King.
Lights and City Decoration; Edward Amerphol.
Manufacturers' Committee; T. O. Howe.
Clubs and Public Welfare; A. P. Lovejoy.
Traffic; J. P. Cullen.
Purchasing and Auditing; Amos Rehberg.
Development and Survey; J. S. Fildes.
Finance; William McVicar.
Good Roads and Streets; H. M. Craig.

Secretary Kuhn gave information regarding the proposed advance switching rates introduced by the C. & N. W. Railway to the railway commission which will affect manufacturers in Janesville. The present switching rate is $2.00 per car and will probably be raised to $2.50 per car. A hearing on the matter will be held on February 23d at which time the traffic committee of the club will be heard.

Joseph Connors made a report on the suggestion that an increase in the dues of the club be made to take in the various departments of business in the city not now represented in the directors of the Commercial club and this will have further consideration at a later meeting.

Bernie and Getz will race at the rink Wednesday night.

GREENHOUSE BLAZE CAUSES LARGE LOSS

Amerphol Plant on Jackson Street and Flowers Suffer From Fire Last Evening at Supper Hour.

Loss of a large amount and damage to flowers and shrubs, and damages of about five hundred dollars to the boiler plant of the Jackson street greenhouse of Edward Amerphol occurred between five and six-thirty last evening from a blaze which originated in the boiler room. Firemen fought the fire for some two hours and were forced to use two ladder hoses to quench the flames.

The frame building housing the steam plant was a mass of flames and the department arrived at the east end of one of the four long glass sheds was broken and with the ingress of cold air raised havoc with tender plants. The damage to the boiler left the building without heat for the night and it was only through the use of temporary fires inside that a greater loss to the floral growths was not experienced.

CONSIDER PROJECT WORK IN TEACHING OF AGRICULTURE

Methods of Instruction Are Discussed at Meeting of Southern Wisconsin Teachers.

One of the important sections of the Southern Wisconsin Teachers' association which met in the capital city of Madison, Feb. 9 and 10, was the agricultural section, which held a session at the Hotel Madison. The session was presided over by F. T. Ulrich of Plattville normal school, president, and Allen B. West of Janesville high school as acting secretary. The session was devoted to a discussion of the project work in connection with the agricultural teaching in the high schools of the state.

The program was opened by H. N. Goddard, the state high school inspector or of agriculture, who discussed "The Present Status of Project Work in Wisconsin." Mr. Goddard said that the state department of education recognized a vocational study; hence it must have a vocational outlook; therefore after organizing class room work, the laboratory work was also organized, this laboratory work including various projects. These projects are of two kinds, individual projects, in which one boy is responsible for the project, and group projects, in which a group of boys is responsible for the project.

As to reporting it is recommended that the pupils, whether working singly or in groups, be required to make exact reports of what they are doing, and that the teachers report their work of supervising regularly to the school board.

Mr. Goddard followed his talk by an exhibition of lantern slides showing various projects. This consisted of well selected pictures of boys and girls in the school, doing their work in the garden, in the field, in the laboratory, in the classroom, in the home, in the community, in the state, in the nation, in the world.

The principal address of the afternoon was made by Eugene Davenport, dean of the agricultural college of the University of Illinois. His topic was "The Use of the Out-of-door Laboratory in the Teaching of Agriculture."

In the opening of his address he paid a tribute to Dean Henry of the Wisconsin college of agriculture, who in him credit to the first man in the United States to give real agricultural instruction, being the first to give work in the out-of-door laboratory. Dean Davenport expressed his belief that the agricultural teacher for twelve months of the year, with a vacation of one month, that he may properly direct and manage his own education.

"Great teachers have all been out-of-door teachers. It is slow teaching, it is the only real teaching. It is the regular school program and for that reason has for many years been crowded out. It is now coming into its own and bringing education to its real life and real life into education."

"Out-of-door projects take time and projects that require considerable labor and the greatest value."

"The work should not be made unscientific by the offering of prizes; prize projects and regular projects should be the same. The teaching should keep within sane boundaries, not taking the abnormal nor deceiving the boy. To work so hard for prizes as to raise an abnormal crop of costly projects, or raising a pig in such a way that the cost of the grain exceeds that of the pork, are examples of unscientific and wholly undesirable projects."

"We have in the past taken the child away from the home to educate him. In the proper teaching of agriculture we have the opportunity to take the country boy back to the home and bring home and school together. So far as possible the laboratory work of the agriculture course should be done on the farms and in the barns."

"If this is not possible then school projects that require considerable labor and the greatest value."

Dean Davenport referred to a bill which was introduced in the federal aid to schools teaching agriculture, with a provision for taking the administration of the fund out of the hands of the teachers. He does not favor such a provision. Though teachers, like other people who really do things, have made mistakes in the past, he believes them best fitted for this work.

Heart and Home Problems

By Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson

Letters may be addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in care of The Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have been married a year. At the time I became engaged there were two young men who loved me, and both of them wanted me to marry them. I loved them more than the other and so I married him. He has to come here to work and so I came with him. Of course I had nothing more to do with the other young man and I lost track of him. My mother and friends did not seem to know anything about him. I practically forgot that I had ever had a husband until two or three months ago I started to dream about him. I thought much of it at first, but finally I began to dream about him very often and I couldn't stop. Now I dread to go to bed because I know what is ahead of me. I have such awful dreams. My husband seems to be poor and cruel to me and he comes and protects me. He is always telling me that he loves me and we make plans to escape my husband and go off together. The dreams seem so ridiculous because my husband is making a good salary and he loves me dearly. I can't imagine his being cruel.

I have never believed that dreams come true, but a friend of mine insists that they do. She says they are ominous and she advises me to tell my fortune teller to have them interpreted. I haven't told my husband about my trouble because I am afraid I would worry him. What would you advise me to do?

UNHAPPY.
Your dreams are the result of your thoughts. Probably when you were young with both the men and know you were to marry one, you compared the two and wondered which would be more kind and would make more money. Your dreams seem the direct outgrowth of such thoughts which were only natural. Of course they did not appear until a long time after you had entirely given up one of the men, but that often happens. Very about the matter has only made your dreaming worse. Look at it as natural and an experience many married women have. It would be very unwise to go to a fortune teller. She would excite you and make the condition worse.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl almost twenty-one years old and am in love with a young man four years my senior. At first I thought that he loved me, but now I know whatever feeling of love he had for me has died. He still comes to see me and writes to me. We do not live in the same town. His letters are the most cruel you can imagine. He uses to tell me things about himself, but now he never says anything personal. When he comes to see me it seems an effort for him to be pleasant. I don't know what to do. It seems to me I can't give him up, but he makes me so unhappy all the time that I can't go on seeing him. What would you advise me to do?

BERNICE.
Stop seeing him. You cannot afford to be made constantly miserable. Since he no longer cares for you, he would stop coming of his own accord in a short time. As soon as you have taken a definite stand you will be happier.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am in love, but I have been told that I do not show enough love for the man. I know I don't because I don't believe in it. I think a girl should love a girl if it is up to him to show it. What do you think? Should I show more love or should I continue to act indifferent? I don't like to act indifferent. I don't like to show more love than she does. But, if a girl really loves a good man, it does not do either one harm if she shows a womanly tenderness and consideration for him.

HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

THE MANAGEMENT OF ALLEGED COLDS.
The best management of the various infectious diseases ignorantly called "colds" is a matter of individual opinion based upon study and experience. My own views are as follows:
If it is in the nose, throat, ear, windpipe, bronchial tubes or deep in the chest, the general procedure is the same, so far as the trouble may be dealt with at home. Of course, since one can never know what an alleged "cold" may prove to be, it is always wise, and I feel sure, economical to go to bed at the onset and until in your physician's hands.
A hot mustard footbath, administered to the patient in bed (never sitting) by a nurse or experienced, is by all odds the most effective remedy available in the relief of an acute respiratory infection. The sweating process is good in itself, but even if no sweating can be brought about, the effect is good, for the heat withdraws blood from the congested area to the surface of the body. Incidentally, getting chilled after a sweat bath of any kind is positively not injurious. A day's rest in bed is the next remedy. The air of the room, however, should be as cool as weather will permit; a bed on the porch is preferable to one in a bedroom.
If the trouble seems to be in the throat or chest, the application of cold compresses, changed every hour, will be more soothing and helpful than might be imagined by one who has yet to try it.
If the trouble seems to be in the nose, it may be found that a few drops of liquid petrolatum dropped in each nostril every hour or two will be helpful.

Are You Reading the Store-News?

The American people read newspapers to an extent unapproached by any other people.

On the street cars and trains, in the hotel lobbies, in all places of business, and especially in the HOMES, under the evening lamp, the newspaper is always in evidence.

The news of the world is first in interest, because mankind is born with a craving to KNOW.

Then come National, State and Local matters—the Editorials, Markets, Business, Comics, Sports and various other features.

But there is still another big department of legitimate news, which CONCERNS ALL NEWSPAPER READERS—THE DAILY STORY OF THE STORES!

This story HOLDS AN INTEREST FOR EVERYONE—it spreads before us a LOT OF SPECIAL AND SPECIFIC INFORMATION WHICH EVERY ADULT MEMBER OF THE FAMILY SHOULD GATHER IN, with regularity, as the weeks go by.

It is a matter of record that FULLY FOUR-FIFTHS of all the MONEY the average man RECEIVES FOR HIS LABOR, or services, MUST BE HANDED OUT AGAIN IMMEDIATELY FOR THINGS THAT ARE FEATURED, AND SPECIALLY PRICED in this NEWS, with each issue of the JANESVILLE DAILY GAZETTE.

We may or we may NOT trade in STOCKS and BONDS, but HERE IS A MARKET IN WHICH ALL MUST TRADE!

The market which FEEDS us, CLOTHES us, and supplies us with HOMES and EVERY OTHER THING WHICH THE MATERIAL MAN REQUIRES to live and be comfortable while on EARTH!

Reading the QUOTATIONS, and DAILY COMMENT, covering this—EVERY MAN'S MARKET, in the ADVERTISING COLUMNS OF THE GAZETTE is a practical application of METHODS OF T-H-R-I-F-T, and the people who FOLLOW this plan are the people who GET ON in the world!

There is Still Room for Improvement in Tom as Regards Both Manners and Good Taste.

In the first place breakfast was late. Tom had returned from a brief business trip to Kansas City at two o'clock and naturally did not feel eager about getting up. Marjory had told him of her pleasant evening at the Mortons. Finally Tom rose and sauntered to the window.

"I wanted you along especially last evening," he remarked, and looked meaningfully at his wife. "Well, I supposed you always wanted me," Marjory rose and followed her husband to the window.

"What are you getting at?" he asked. "I do not think this was special," she quavered. "He stopped and looked with dancing eyes at the girl beside him."

"What are you getting at?" he asked. "I do not think this was special," she quavered. "He stopped and looked with dancing eyes at the girl beside him."

THE MISTAKES THEY DON'T MAKE.

Did you ever see a salesgirl make out a slip? You think that's an extraordinary question, but I don't mean just look at her; I mean see her.

For that is one of the innumerable little activities that go on under our eyes so often that we never really see them.

We've all watched the shop girl in our favorite shop make out slips hundreds of times, and then we've brought those slips home. And yet I don't believe one woman in a hundred, no a thousand, could tell what the clerk has to write on the slip.

I am sure I couldn't. That is, not until recently. The other day when I was shopping, something drew my attention to the process and I studied it.

What She Has to Write. And this is what the girl in that particular shop had to put on the slip for every purchase, even if it were no more than five cents.

The number of the department. The sales number. The date. The number of pieces in the purchase.

What is the matter with the colors? Every kind of color is fashionable this year, and I got it at a bargain. Of course you know I would not have gotten it without you if it had not been for that.

It does not go with anything we have. Oh, Tom, can't you take it back? "Take it back!" he exclaimed in tones of horror. She returned articles that were not satisfactory every month, but Tom could not be brought to return anything when once it was purchased.

I got the thing to please you. I am sorry you do not like it. Tom's top was cold. "But it is impossible, Tom, I simply can't live with that rug. It ruins the room."

"Well, throw it out of doors, then. Do what you want to do with it, but don't take it back, and I'll never buy you anything again."

"Tom," began Marjory, choking. "Let's drop the subject. You have said altogether too much already." Tom left the room in disgust.

"SAVE THE BABIES." These are authentic quotations from the pamphlet on babies by Dr. L. Emmett Holt of Columbia University and Dr. Henry K. Shaw of Union University.

The mother should nurse her baby because there is no danger of sour milk, no trouble about preparing and measuring, it is nature's method and the best method. It makes your baby strong and healthy. It does away with germs and dirt in the baby's food, protects your baby from many infants' diseases, and is safer all around. Your baby will have the best chance of living if you nurse it. Ten bottle fed babies die to one that is nursed. The nursing mother's physical condition will be dealt with tomorrow.

Whether the article was charged or paid for. The purchaser's address, including name with initials, street and number, town, state.

And finally the price which has to appear in three different places. All this has to be done as fast as fingers can fly while a customer, very likely an impatient one, is waiting for her bundle.

When the purchase is not a charge, money must be carefully handled. Frequently a would-be customer interrupts to ask some question (which very likely should have been addressed to a floor walker) and is highly indignant if it is not promptly answered.

And then we find fault because now and then there is a wrong item on the bill or a package is delayed, and marvel at the mistakes the clerks "manage to make."

To my mind, now I stop to think of it, there is a far greater marvel than that.

The mistakes they don't make. employment, have a disturbing effect. The management adds that many women who have done satisfactory work will be retained in the service after the war, but that in general the employment of women by the state roads will be only temporary.

Wholesome Home Made Bread

There is nothing better for the family than plenty of good home-made bread.

Even the most inexperienced housewife can bake bread that "tastes like more" with a little instruction and an always reliable gas range.

There's a lot of satisfaction in baking golden brown, wholesome, appetizing bread in your gas range.

RECIPE FOR BREAD

Take half of the yeast prepared according to last Wednesday's recipe; scald a pint of sour milk and strain to remove the cheese. Add this lukewarm whey to the yeast. Now add a tablespoon of lard; enough flour to make a stiff dough. Knead well, and let rise in a large bowl for about an hour. Knead down and let rise again. Then work it into loaves, letting them raise until light enough to bake. Heat oven for ten minutes, put in bread, turn oven burners down half way for 10 minutes, then reduce flame very low. Bake 1 hour. If bread has a tendency to brown on top too rapidly, cover with a sheet of paper.

FINAL INSTRUCTIONS

Set the remaining pint of yeast away, uncorked, in a cool place until the day before baking. Then boil 2 medium sized potatoes in a pint of water. Mash fine, add to the old yeast while lukewarm. Then add 1/2 cup sugar, 1 spoonful of salt. Set away in a cool place until the next day; then divide, using half and keeping half as stock. Proceed as outlined under "Bread."

It will be noticed that no yeast foam is added after starting.
